Interpersonal (soft) skills are integral to your career

Your GPA is important, but it’s not everything. Besides having the necessary technical skills and aptitude to secure an internship or job, your interpersonal skills or “soft skills” are very important to an employer looking to make an investment in you.

Being able to communicate effectively with colleagues and clients is critical to your career success. The more you are able to create and develop meaningful relationships inside and outside of your company, the more opportunities you can create for your future. People get hired and promoted not only because they have the right skillset, but because they are genuinely likable.

Whether you think it’s fair or not, you could get passed over for a job or promotion because the other person had better people skills. It makes sense, but so many people do not realize that they do themselves a disservice when they treat their coworkers poorly or choose to not get along with them.

You get to choose the image that you project at work. History tells us that people with strong soft skills lead successful careers.

Upcoming Events

Cookies and Careers – ECC Table
Wednesday, November 9th
ERF Lobby (off Taylor)
Flyer with details

Supply Chain Career Fair
Monday, November 14th
SCE Tower: Room 302 @ 4-6 PM
Event details

LinkedIn Lab
Thursday, November 10th
SCE Tower – Room 408
Event Details

Bioengineering Industry Day
Friday, November 18th @ 1:30
UIC Innovation Center (by SSB)
Required Registration Link

Career Advice from the Experts
We have hand-selected recent articles with career development advice to help you prepare for your future career in engineering.

Featured articles this week: Interpersonal (Soft) Skills

- 7 signs you need to develop your emotional intelligence
- The value of soft skills in a tech-obsessed economy
- How an introverted engineer learned to lead

Other Topics
Resume | Cover Letter | Internship/Job Search | Networking | LinkedIn
Preparing for a Career Fair | Interview Preparation | Following up with Companies
Salary & Job Offer Negotiation | Communication & Interpersonal Skills

Now Hiring: Featured Employers
Companies with postings on UICcareers
Click logo to visit company website

TOP 10 MOST IN-DEMAND SOFT SKILLS
• Communication • Creativity
• Organization • Interpersonal Comm.
• Teamwork • Adaptability
• Punctuality • Friendly
• Critical Thinking • Personality
• Social Skills

Source: LinkedIn - August, 2016

Interpersonal (soft) skills are integral to your career

Your GPA is important, but it’s not everything. Besides having the necessary technical skills and aptitude to secure an internship or job, your interpersonal skills or “soft skills” are very important to an employer looking to make an investment in you.

Being able to communicate effectively with colleagues and clients is critical to your career success. The more you are able to create and develop meaningful relationships inside and outside of your company, the more opportunities you can create for your future. People get hired and promoted not only because they have the right skillset, but because they are genuinely likable.

Whether you think it’s fair or not, you could get passed over for a job or promotion because the other person had better people skills. It makes sense, but so many people do not realize that they do themselves a disservice when they treat their coworkers poorly or choose to not get along with them.

You get to choose the image that you project at work. History tells us that people with strong soft skills lead successful careers.

Upcoming Events

Cookies and Careers – ECC Table
Wednesday, November 9th
ERF Lobby (off Taylor)
Flyer with details

Supply Chain Career Fair
Monday, November 14th
SCE Tower: Room 302 @ 4-6 PM
Event details

LinkedIn Lab
Thursday, November 10th
SCE Tower – Room 408
Event Details

Bioengineering Industry Day
Friday, November 18th @ 1:30
UIC Innovation Center (by SSB)
Required Registration Link

Career Advice from the Experts
We have hand-selected recent articles with career development advice to help you prepare for your future career in engineering.

Featured articles this week: Interpersonal (Soft) Skills

- 7 signs you need to develop your emotional intelligence
- The value of soft skills in a tech-obsessed economy
- How an introverted engineer learned to lead

Other Topics
Resume | Cover Letter | Internship/Job Search | Networking | LinkedIn
Preparing for a Career Fair | Interview Preparation | Following up with Companies
Salary & Job Offer Negotiation | Communication & Interpersonal Skills

Now Hiring: Featured Employers
Companies with postings on UICcareers
Click logo to visit company website

TOP 10 MOST IN-DEMAND SOFT SKILLS
• Communication • Creativity
• Organization • Interpersonal Comm.
• Teamwork • Adaptability
• Punctuality • Friendly
• Critical Thinking • Personality
• Social Skills

Source: LinkedIn - August, 2016

Interpersonal (soft) skills are integral to your career

Your GPA is important, but it’s not everything. Besides having the necessary technical skills and aptitude to secure an internship or job, your interpersonal skills or “soft skills” are very important to an employer looking to make an investment in you.

Being able to communicate effectively with colleagues and clients is critical to your career success. The more you are able to create and develop meaningful relationships inside and outside of your company, the more opportunities you can create for your future. People get hired and promoted not only because they have the right skillset, but because they are genuinely likable.

Whether you think it’s fair or not, you could get passed over for a job or promotion because the other person had better people skills. It makes sense, but so many people do not realize that they do themselves a disservice when they treat their coworkers poorly or choose to not get along with them.

You get to choose the image that you project at work. History tells us that people with strong soft skills lead successful careers.